

I am a resident of Indiana and am against weakening our no call list law. Even though i am on the list, i still receive unsolicited calls. I currently have caller ID only because I found that 8 years ago, most telemarketers calls go through switchboards and come up as "unknown" and I was able to screen my calls that way. I feel that the federal government should strengthen there laws to the same level as Indiana's not the other way around.

Sincerely
